

Does one student matter?

The crowd was overwhelming—thousands of hungry people gathered with no food in sight. The disciples looked at what they had: five loaves and two fish. It wasn't enough. The need was far too great, and the resources were far too small.

And yet, Jesus didn't ask for enough to fix everything—He asked for what they had.

He took what seemed insignificant and did the miraculous—feeding every person there, with baskets of food left over. The miracle didn't begin with abundance—it began with obedience. Someone offered what little they had, and it mattered. Not to the thousands at first. But to the first one. Then the next. And the next.

That's what faithfulness looks like: not solving every problem but surrendering what's in your hands and trusting God to multiply it. It's not about changing the whole world all at once—it's about impacting the one God places in front of you. And that kind of obedience echoes into eternity.

---

What's in front of TCS?

We're not failing, and we're not sinking. We are walking a path of faith—a path that leads us closer to the Lord. And as we take each step in trust, we see lives transformed, generational change and hope renewed.

Does it matter? Absolutely.

It did to Maya S., a TCS graduate who now teaches agriculture and quietly pours the love of Christ into her students. She's helping shape young lives—not with grand gestures, but with the same quiet faithfulness she saw modeled in her teachers at TC. Her parents give thanks for the role TCS played in helping Maya fulfill her God-given potential.

This is the essence of our mission: to nurture and develop the unique potential of each student, empowering them to make a positive impact on the world.

Does one student matter?

At TCS, yes. Every time.

As one parent beautifully put it, “We cultivate character through our community. We empower students to make a positive impact on the world.”

We are TCS—a community of Faith, Family, and Future. Your support is invaluable. Join us in sharing the good work happening here. Tell others about your family’s experience.

Because if it matters to one, it matters to Him. And it matters to us.

Johanna Fischer

Chair of the TCS Board

(send replies to jfischer@turlockchristian.com)

Turlock Christian School | www.turlockchristian.com | 209.632.2337