

Together We Build a Legacy of Hope

Dear TC Family,

There are two kinds of hope. One is human hope—the wishful thinking or optimism that rises and falls with circumstances. The Apostle Paul experienced this in the midst of his shipwreck:

“When neither sun nor stars appeared for many days, and the storm continued raging, we finally gave up all hope of being saved.”

— Acts 27:20

His optimism was worn down, as it often is in our frail human lives. So often, as we wait on the Lord, our “hope” fades when we don’t receive what we expect or desire. Yet we must learn the art of not being consumed by what we lack but instead becoming increasingly aware of what we still have. God is the source of all joy and hope.

Paul defined this hope clearly in Romans:

“May the God of hope fill you with all joy and peace as you trust in him, so that you may overflow with hope by the power of the Holy Spirit.”

— Romans 15:13

When our hope is rooted in the Lord, it doesn’t fade or diminish in the face of difficulty. It sustains us, strengthens us, and steadies us through every circumstance and season. It shines out across our community that strength is not found in ourselves but in a community of faith rooted in the Lord.

Here at TC, our hope is in the Lord. Does life always go as we want? We know better. But when I reflect on this school year, I see what kind of hope has carried us—the hope that serves over 670 children, unites faculty and staff, draws families back after difficult years, and strengthens our “hope muscles” as we move forward together.

We are TC, a school of faith, family, and future. And I can say with confidence: our hope is in the Lord.

Blessings,
