

United for Our Children's Future

Dear TC family,

These Are the Days of His Blessings

I remember vividly the uncertainty we faced this past summer. We were navigating the aftermath of difficult leadership transitions, lingering hurt from those who had departed, and a future that felt anything but clear. Those days were heavy; at times, the path ahead seemed daunting, and in our own strength, insurmountable.

But in those moments, I was reminded of two unshakable truths:

- We serve a God far bigger than any challenge we face.
- And we are, at our core, a God-focused family.

“With man this is impossible, but with God all things are possible.”

Matthew 19:26

We are TC.

To those outside our community, it may be hard to understand why a small Christian school, located in an agriculture-rooted community, carries such resilience. But we know the answer: we are no strangers to hard work. Uncertainty is woven into our livelihoods. And yet, we lift our eyes, link arms, and move forward - together.

I saw that truth beautifully displayed Friday night at the Gala, an event many would have said was impossible to assemble in such a short timeframe. But through the leadership of a Christ-centered team who refused to quit, and volunteers who served with devotion, God did what only He can do.

The attention to detail, the beauty of the evening, the incredible entertainment from Ash Ruder, the inspiring keynote brought by Nick Harris, the joy of seeing community members - old and new - gather in unity, the generosity of those who provided auction items and those who purchased them, and the overwhelming support to help close our financial gap...every moment was evidence that God is moving in and through TC.

If you were not able to attend, you truly did miss a remarkable evening, but you are not missing the opportunity to be part of what God is doing here. There is still room for every heart, every prayer, every gift, and every family to join in the mission of honoring God and serving our children.

Its success was not rooted in who we are, but in who we serve - a faithful God who is building His Kingdom one child at a time.

Is there more work ahead? Absolutely. There always will be.

But we do not labor alone. We work with Him and for Him. And He will never leave us or forsake us.

We remain focused, united, and unwavering in purpose.

We are, and always will be, a faith-filled family whose future cannot be denied, not because of our strength, but because of His. Our efforts are for our children, for generations to come, and for the Kingdom work God has entrusted to us.

“Let us hold unswervingly to the hope we profess,
for He who promised is faithful.”
Hebrews 10:23

With gratitude, faith, and renewed expectation.

Proud to serve alongside each of you,

Johanna Fischer
TC Board Chair
