

Celebrated, Supported, and Known

Dear TC Families,

This past weekend, our Basketball Homecoming reminded us of one of God's sweetest gifts to our school: community. It was a joy to gather with so many of you - to cheer on our teams, celebrate our Homecoming royalty, and share in an evening full of laughter, pride, and connection. If you weren't able to join us this time, we hope you'll make plans to be part of the next celebration. These moments matter deeply to our students and staff, and they are always richer when shared together.

Events like Homecoming are more than games and ceremonies. They are opportunities for our students to feel seen, supported, and celebrated by a community that truly knows them. Our faculty and students invest countless hours to create nights filled with joy and school spirit, because they understand the lasting impact of these shared experiences. These are the memories that shape hearts, build confidence, and stay with our students long after the final buzzer sounds.

As Saturday night unfolded, I was struck by the beauty of what we witnessed together. We celebrated an extraordinary milestone as Michael Miller scored his 1,000th career point, an incredible achievement reached in less than three seasons! What made the moment especially meaningful was not just the accomplishment itself, but how it was celebrated: by coaches, teammates, family, fellow students, teachers, and parents all rejoicing together. God's hand was evident not only in Michael's talent and perseverance, but also in the perfect timing - what better place to celebrate than Homecoming, surrounded by his school family?

The evening continued with a varsity win that added to the excitement, and a Homecoming royalty court filled with bright, gracious students honored by their peers. Each moment reflected something larger than individual success, it reflected a community that delights in lifting one another up.

When we speak of faith, family, and future at Turlock Christian, the “family” we refer to is the TC family. What sets us apart is not just our programs or traditions, but the way our community is bonded by faith, united in purpose, and committed to investing in our students’ futures together. Our children learn not only from the classroom, but from watching a community model encouragement, celebration, and selfless support.

“Therefore, encourage one another and build one another up, just as you are doing.”

1 Thessalonians 5:11

Saturday night was a beautiful picture of that truth in action. I am so grateful for the many ways our families give of their time, talent, and treasure to make TC such a special place. It is a blessing to walk this journey together, and I am truly proud to be part of this school family.

With gratitude,
Johanna Fischer
